representing the various daily papers of the state. Citizens at the principal points entertained pictures were taken, and column after column of the golden weed and how it was transforming South Georgia into a land of milk and honey. Those were great days and great experiences, and as we learn from history, were not much different in introduction of new enterprises into any section of the county.

Unsuccessful attempts were made to grow tobacco in Chatham, Oglethorpe and Hart counties. The industry has gone through the promotion stage and has settled down to a steady and sound progressive state. During all the promotion, ups and downs, and the ballyhooing efforts were being made by the college of agriculture, extension service, the university, and the Coastal Plains Experiment station to direct the farmers in methods of growing tobacco which would enable them to derive the greatest returns.

A very elaborate set of experiments was set up at the Coastal Plain Experiment station in 1921. These tobacco experiments were in co-operation with the college of agriculture, and the United States Experiment Station in Washington. They were enlarged from time to time, and have furnished a source of sound information regarding tobacco fertilizers, varieties, rotation, disease control, etc.

We started in Georgia using 1-000 pounds per acre of what was known under the old formula as an 8-3-3 fertilizer, the fertilizer most commonly used in the Carolinas and Virginia at that time. After a few years, we changed the recommendations to a 3-10-7 fertilizer, and now our experiments indicate that on many of our soils a 3-10-10 fertilizer is the most profitable.

The Tifton station has developed a very effective method of controlling the much-dreaded blue-mold disease.

For the first few years after the tobacco culture started in Georgia, tobacco warehousemen were vying with each other for business. In order to obligate the growers to sell their tobacco at their warehouses, the warehousemen furnished the farmers tobacco seed free.

Stories were told how warehousemen would furnish farmers with seed of as many as a dozen varieties from the same bag. If a farmer came in and said he wanted Yellow Pryor, the warehouseman would hand him a bag of one hundred and fifty million pounds to show him the seed. If another farmer came in and said he wanted Aunt Nancy's Best, the warehouseman would hand him a bag of one hundred and fifty million pounds to show him the seed.

Tobacco seedling plants have been established at Tifton, Douglas and Valdosta. In our opinion, the industry is now on a sound basis. A reputation has been established with the leading companies. The first few years some of the larger manufacturing companies bought very sparingly of Georgia tobacco because they did not believe Georgia growers could produce the type of tobacco which would meet their requirements as well as tobacco produced in old areas by people who had been growing it for generations.

Within a short time, however, Georgia demonstrated that she could produce tobacco which rivaled in quality that produced in any other area.

Georgia's tobacco crop is still sold without tying into hands. Arguments and discussions, both by representatives of manufacturers as well as growers, over the problem of tying have taken place from time to time during the last fifteen years.

From the growers' standpoint, it is a matter of time and labor required, and the conflict of these with other crops and enterprises. With the manufacturer, it is the question of being able to get the tobacco in a form where there is the least amount of waste; but this would require lengthening the market period, hence the question remains unsettled.

Lehman Franklin And Two College Boys Hurt In Crash

Lehman Franklin, local Chevrolet dealer, and a student of the Georgia Teachers college, escaped with minor cuts and bruises, while a second student sustained serious external lacerations when the pickup truck in which they were riding crashed head-on into the rear of a parked truck-trailer on South Main street here last night.

According to a report, Franklin picked the two students up and were carrying them to the college when the truck, in which they were riding, crashed into the rear of the parked truck.

James Todd, of Vidalia, was the most seriously hurt of the occupants of the small truck, being out several times on his face and around his knees. Todd's body was pinned inside and it took several persons to free his body. The other student, Hardy Pilkerton, was the least hurt. He had very few cuts and sustained minor bruises.

Lehman Franklin sustained severe cuts about the head.

Walter S. Brown, secretary-manager, Savannah Chamber of Commerce, will be the speaker for the regular meeting of the Farm Bureau Friday night in the court house, Fred G. Blitch, president, announced.

Rites Held For C. M. Cumming

C. M. Cumming, age 79, one of Statesboro's oldest and best known citizens, died at a local hospital here Tuesday after a short illness. Funeral services were held yesterday (Wednesday) morning at the Lanier's Mortuary chapel at 11 o'clock, with Dr. C. M. Coleson in charge of the services. Burial was in the East Side cemetery.

Mr. Cumming has been a resident of Statesboro for more than fifty years. He was born in August, 1861, in Scotland, Scotland. He lived in Texas and in Bainbridge for a time before coming to Statesboro. Mr. Cumming was a member of the United Fire department, an honor he held for a long time.

Mr. Cumming is survived by his wife, two sons, Earl M. Cumming, of Atlanta, and Britt S. Cumming, of Savannah; two daughters, Mrs. C. O. Giff, of Wrightsville, and Mrs. George Mathis, of New Orleans, La. Active pallbearers were T. W. Rowe, S. D. Groover, F. C. Parker, Sr., H. W. Smith, J. Frank Oliver, A. J. Bowen.

Honorary pallbearers were Cecil Waters, Dr. J. H. Whiteside, Emma Deale, Dr. M. S. Pittman, Sidney Lanier, J. E. McCroan, R. P. Donaldson, J. L. Renfro, R. F. Hoke, Clayton Martin, J. L. Lovett, C. P. Olliff, Bates Lovett, D. B. Turner, R. P. Holland, S. J. B. Everett.

Rogers To Open 'Little Star' Store

L. B. Taylor, manager of the new Rogers "Little Star" store, announced today that it would open tomorrow (Friday) morning at 8 o'clock.

The old Rogers store was burned when fire completely destroyed the Holland building in January of this year.

The new Rogers store occupies part of the new Holland building, recently rebuilt.

Mr. Taylor announced that Perry Kennedy, a Bulloch county citizen, will be associated with the store as assistant manager and that all the clerks in the store will be local citizens. Denver Hollingsworth, of Savannah, will also be in the store.

W. L. Stearns, general superintendent of Rogers Stores in Georgia, and P. H. Rawlings, division superintendent, and C. J. Wallace, district supervisor, are in Statesboro for the opening.

Mr. Taylor pointed out yesterday that Statesboro is the first town in the 5,000-population bracket in which a "Little Star" store has been established. Among the features of the new store is a completely self-service refrigerated produce department and a refrigerated vegetable rack. The entire store is self-service except the meat department. Mr. Taylor added that the grocery prices here will be the same as those in the Savannah "Big Star" stores.

Filling Stations

Wholesale distributors of gasoline in the city of Statesboro and Bulloch county report 100 per cent co-operation with Uncle Sam's request to conserve on gasoline supplies.

A. B. McDougald, of the American Oil company; H. P. Jones, of the Gulf Oil company; C. H. Pound of the Sinclair Refining company; and Leroy Tyson, Standard Oil company, all stated that their filling stations in Statesboro and Bulloch county are co-operating to the fullest extent in closing their stations at 7 o'clock in the evening and opening at 7 o'clock in the morning.

A few stations, it is pointed out, are allowed to remain open all night but may sell gasoline only to commercial vehicles, including trucks, ambulances, etc.

There was a noticeable increase in gasoline sales between the hours of 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday which was accounted for in that those anticipating taking long trips filled their tanks up in the earlier hours of the day.

The filling station dealers seem to like the new hours better, it was learned.

FSA Now Taking Purchase Applications

According to W. W. Moore, FSA supervisor, all people interested in purchasing a farm under the Jones-Barnett farm tenancy act should make application immediately. Mr. Moore stated that all applications on file dated before July 1, 1940, are out of date. Any person interested whose application is over one year old should make a new one. Farm security is very anxious for eligible people in this county to make applications.

Mr. Moore stated that in the past there had been forty-two of such farms purchased in Bulloch county. These farms are amortized over a period of forty years at 3 per cent interest. It is the practice of FSA to add money to necessary repairing to all buildings, fences and wells; this money being loaned at the same interest rate as money for purchase of the land.

The application blanks may be secured at the county agent's office, all vocal teachers, or at the local Farm Security office on the third floor of the old Statesboro bank building.

NYA Girls Report On Rural Youth Institute At University of Georgia

Beth Floyd and Bobbie Turner, of the National Youth Administration Resident center, Statesboro, were among the 103 youth who attended the Rural Youth Institute for Leadership Training held at the University of Georgia, July 21-30. Delegates to this conference were sponsored by F. A. A., the 4-H clubs, civic organizations, NYA and church and schools. Eighty counties of Georgia were represented.

The girls returned with enthusiasm plans for their own community as well as for their NYA project. Their eyes had been opened to what "youth" could do—the

H. F. Hook Is Named Mayor Of Statesboro

At a call meeting of the Statesboro city council Monday morning at 8:15, Dr. H. F. Hook was elected mayor of the city of Statesboro.

Dr. Hook was elected for the unexpired term of the late Dr. R. E. Johnson. Dr. Hook will serve through December, 1942.

Dr. Cone had served on the council since 1928. He became mayor in 1939. Dr. Hook was elected as a member of the city council since 1939.

At the same meeting, J. B. Johnson was elected as city councilman for the unexpired term of Dr. Hook.

The other members of the council are Dr. Glenn Jennings, J. Gilbert Cone, John Everett and Lannie F. Simmons.

Councilmen Jennings, Cone and Everett's terms of office expire in December of this year and will be up for re-election.

Rotarians Host To Tobacco Men

Talking to the members of the Statesboro Rotary club here Monday of this week, H. P. Foxhall advised that there is a lot of common tobacco this year and that the price on it is going to be low. He stated, however, that he believed that the farmers were going to be satisfied with the prices on the better grades of tobacco.

Mr. Foxhall spent most of his time on the program explaining in brief detail the workings of the various legislative measures which would affect the tobacco farmer and the tobacco market.

He pointed out that the bitterest foes of tobacco control now have to admit that the tobacco belt would be in pretty bad shape if the majority of the tobacco growers had not voted for the control plan.

Again this year, he stated, the federal government is financing the export companies so that they might buy tobacco on the Georgia markets.

Other tobacco men on the program with Mr. Foxhall were R. E. Sheppard, W. E. Cobb, O. G. Rucker and E. A. Farlow.

O. G. Rucker, nationally known auctioneer, gave an auction demonstration, using members of the club as buyers. It was amusing to the other members of the club for the "buyers" had no idea when they were buying or when they were raising each other's bid.

Final Deadline Set For Drivers Licenses

Commissioner John E. Goodwin has ordered the date of the deadline on drivers' licenses extended until Aug. 10, at which time he states that all drivers' license applications now on hand will be completed and returned to the applicant. Commissioner Goodwin ordered the state patrol to start road checks at one minute after midnight on Aug. 15, as he says that will give motorists the time to make their way to the state patrol to clear out after the deadline date. He stated further that the delay has been caused by quite a few of the applications being improperly filled out, which necessitated searching the records to get the necessary information to put on them. He also stated that all licenses should be back in the hands of the applicants by Aug. 10 and that anyone applying for a license after that date would have to take a test before the safe driver examiner, who gives tests in each county sent once a month or that the test may be taken at any Georgia State Patrol station.

Jaycees Are Still Collecting Aluminum

Hoke Brunson, president of the Statesboro Junior Chamber of Commerce, announced this week that the people of Statesboro are being given another opportunity to aid in the aluminum drive for national defense before they ship the collections off to Uncle Sam.

Mr. Brunson stated that if you have not contributed your old aluminum and will call any member of the junior chamber of commerce or Jake Smith at Lanier's mortuary, they will have a truck to pick up your offering.

The pen erected at the court house square is about full. Members of the Jaycee organization, together with the Boy Scouts, have helped with the collection which is being donated to help in the drive for aluminum with which to build airplanes.

Enlistment Offered By Navy To Men 17 to 31

Leut. K. C. Hendrick, chief electrician's mate in the United States navy, was in Statesboro on Wednesday of this week.

Leut. Hendrick stated that the navy is offering enlistment to young men between the ages of 17 and 31 to serve on active duty only for the duration of the present emergency. He stated that they are offering the same opportunity of taking trade training as is offered by enlistment in the regular navy.

He pointed out that any young man between 17 and 31 with the equivalent of a seventh grade education can qualify and that information may be secured from Room 238, Post Office building, Savannah.

Lions Enjoy Picnic At Magnolia Springs

The members of the Statesboro Lions club held a picnic meeting at Magnolia Springs, near Milledgeville, on Wednesday night of last week. Members, their wives and dates made the trip. Swimming and bar-becue chicken were features of the evening.

SENTENCE SERMON

Silence is one of the great arts of conversation, as allowed by Cicero himself, who says, "There is not only an art, but an eloquence in it"; and this opinion is confirmed by a great modern, Lord Bacon. For a wellbred woman may easily and effectively promote the most useful and elegant conversation without speaking a word. The modes of speech are scarcely more variable than the modes of silence.—Blair.

CAN YOU PROVE YOUR BIRTH?

IF YOU ARE over 23 years of age, can you prove you were born?
Sounds like a screwball question, doesn't it? But a great many of our citizens here in Bulloch County will tell you different. It is a question of vital importance, and is becoming increasingly important. For example, contractors working on some type of defense production are not permitted to employ any except native-born Americans.

Until 1918, Georgia had no compulsory registration law. Those of us born before that had no documentary proof of the date and place of our birth. And now, due to the grave times in which we find ourselves, the Undersecretaries of War and the Navy and Commerce have sent letters to all states asking the immediate adoption of a new plan by which persons may obtain birth certificates.

On April 17, 1941, the State Board of Health adopted a delayed certificate of birth form which may be filled out and is accepted as legal proof of birth. The form provides for evidence such as doctors' records, records from State of Federal Census, family Bibles, baptismal or confirmation certificates; school records, insurance policies, marriage licenses, and the like.

Dr. O. F. Whitman, County Health Commissioner, states that these birth certificates, as well as the certificates of new births, should be filed through the County Health Department. Here two copies are made: one for the files of the Health Department, one for the files of the county Ordinary's office and the original certificate is sent to the State Department of Health in Atlanta, where a certified copy is made and either the original or the certified copy is forwarded to Washington, District of Columbia.

So, if you were born before 1918 and hope to get work of any kind with Uncle Sam you better get "documentary proof" that you were born!

Even if you never work for Uncle Sam, it is a good idea to be able to prove that you were born!

ROTARIANS LEARN ABOUT TOBACCO AUCTIONEERING

TOBACCO AUCTIONEER ("Dean") O. G. Rucker gave the Statesboro Rotarians a lesson in tobacco auctioneering at its regular meeting Monday. Mr. Rucker stood before the Rotary Club and its visitors and sold several baskets of imaginary tobacco. Several members "bought" some tobacco, not realizing that they were even bidding, since a blink of the eye, the scratching of an ear all meant a raised bid to Dean Rucker. It was all in the spirit of fun and the Rotarians enjoyed it very much. But when he began working this week at the warehouse, it became a very serious business for Mr. Rucker, the buyers, farmers and people of Bulloch County. The three warehousemen, Mr. P. Foxhall, Mr. W. E. Cobb and Mr. Bob Sheppard, and Mr. Farlow were also guests of the club.

During the Tobacco Market there are a large number of people who will be here for the "duration." In every respect, Statesboro is their home during the time they are here. We want them to feel at home and it is our duty to make them feel at home.

IT WON'T be long now! Ask any school kid what we are talking about and he'll finish our statement for us. "Till school starts again!"

... But Don't Blame Us If the Almanac Is Wrong

EDITOR'S NOTE—We've been off on a week-end—now, don't say it—not the kind of week-end you are building up in your mind—it was just a nice, quiet week-end in which we caught up on what's going on in the world—and slept forty-eight hours. So, in order to fill our favorite newspaper and to clip a column from one of our favorite writers, it's taken from the column, "Not That It Matters," by Edna Cain Hader, of the Quitman Free Press. Here it is:

MOVE OVER, FARMERS
Farmers, pick up your mortgage and move over. Company is coming. We're ready for the war. We're looking for a place to live and the first place they thought of was a farm far from the city. They say the best place to live is along Park Avenue in New York City. These people are buying farms all the way from Maine to the Bahamas. Of course, right now places on the coast are not so desirable as they once were. But it is all well as they say that we shall get some of the backwash of farm seekers.

Be there a man with soul so dead who to himself hath not said: Well, if the worst comes to the worst we can always go back to our little farm. We can make a living, we can eat. The worried rich think that, although none of them have had any practical experience with farming since their great-grandpappy hired a home-steader out of the wilderness primitive.

What we are interested in is that farms are coming into their own again. Perhaps the insurance companies which are choked up with farms they have taken over, may be able to sell them and we shall have some nice neighbors all around. It seems that farms are wanted on paved roads. Acres of back lots, maybe in the middle of a lake somewhere with no telephone and no rural mail delivery are the most attractive.

Rich people who have settled in cities are worried about the way the world is being broken up, they are worried about taxes and about social revolution, and having money is not what it once was. It is truly appalling to see what has happened to rich people in Europe. The United States is about the safest place in the world to live and even so no man can say that the pattern of the world will be but it does not look so good.

If the United States is the safest place in the world, the South is probably the safest place in the United States. In the South the rich people hate Roosevelt, or at least hate him for the New Deal, and the poor have sympathy with the rich because we all hope to be rich some day and we know we'd feel like rich people feel. A Socialist Democrat would be as rare as a sight as a giant panda. We are a conservative people opposed to change and we believe that rich would feel at home and safe among us. We are all worried, too, but not for the same reason.

Dear Ed:
Everybody still plenty mad about the ousting of Dr. Pittman and Cocking. Peers to me like they get MADDER every day. Someone says to me, "If we get so upset over it all, how do you suppose they feel?" Well, Ed, I figure they feel just about like Robert Toombs after the Civil war. When Stevens asked, "Well, Mr. Toombs, how do you feel about being licked by the Yankees?" "We feel like Lazarus did," was the reply.

"How's that?" asked Stevens. "Lazarus was licked by the dogs, wasn't he?"
WORD has it that some one of the town cuties won't go to the dances at Camp Stewart 'cause she can't see dancing with any $25-a-month private. How could any one be so ignorant? Why, hasn't she heard that some of 'em don't even draw that much? They have it sent directly to their favorite charity. And speaking of charity, Ed, the best book for the past 5,000 years says something about "charity begins at home."

Nothing is more disconcerting to a confirmed liar than to be caught telling the truth.

A man without a self-starter, initiative, is about as much in demand as a car without a self-starter.

Loose screws in the news farmers tell snake tales. He hit off more than he could chew. Thus, in one sentence is the story of the downfall of an ambitious snake who tried to swallow whole a baby pig. George Jones, of Sandersville, came on the scene just as the piglet was disappearing, killed the reptile and released the victim.

This incident immediately reminded Horace Sheppard of a snake that swallowed an egg, crawled through a slit in a hotel orange crate, swallowed another egg, and found himself securely fastened between the two eggs.

Which, incidentally, called to mind of C. M. Mason, the case of a reptile that swallowed a door-knob in a hen's nest, and became too heavy to run from the scene of the crime. He was caught and killed.

Cottonseed meal and cake have been valuable in supplying the needs of the beef cattle breeding herd for protein and phosphorus.

Ice cream produced in the United States during 1939 exceeded 300,000,000 gallons.

Family Health Chat

By Dr. O. F. WHITMAN

"SUNSTROKE" AND "OVERHEATING"
"Overheating" and "sunstroke" both are the result of heat retention in the body. The Journal of the American Medical Association for July 26 says in answer to a question as to what the specific pathologic difference is between the two conditions or whether they are simply gradations of the same process.

"When the environmental temperature reaches or exceeds body temperature, body heat cannot be lost by radiation." The skin is saturated with moisture, body heat cannot be lost by evaporation and the body temperature begins to rise. This heat retention often results in symptoms of dizziness, ataxia (lack of muscular coordination), and weakness. This is known as "overheating" or heat exhaustion. It is often complicated by loss of chloride (salt) due to excessive sweating. In this condition the cerebral (brain) heat regulating mechanism is undisturbed but heat loss is impossible because of environment.

"Sunstroke" is the term applied to the heat retention due to a loss of heat control. The skin is hot and dry as in high fever and the body temperature rises to 106 to 110 F. "Sunstroke" may come on principally or it may be a further development of "overheating."

WARS ALWAYS FOCUS SPREAD OF DISEASE
One hundred and thirty-four new public health workers have been assigned to state and local health departments.

A large crowd of girls and boys enjoyed an informal party at Cecil's Friday night with Mr. and Mrs. E. Carter and Mr. and Mrs. W. Brannen as chaperones.

Mr. and Mrs. Darius Brown, of Swainsboro, were week-end guests of Dr. and Mrs. C. Miller. They were accompanied home by Miss Virginia Miller, who will visit there for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rackley and little daughter, Kay, of Savannah, visited relatives here during the week-end.

Mrs. Fritz Shaw, of Marietta, spent the week-end with her sisters, Mrs. A. B. DeLoach and Miss Debbie Trapnell.

Undoubtedly, we could convince them that we are a people untainted by modern nations. We believe in private property, the more the better. We don't like a lot of what is going on and feel sure if the worried rich will come down and cast in their lot with us they will find us congenial even if we do not own any race horse or solid silver to amount to anything. And that is the main thing, it is the people who haven't anything themselves and don't want anything else to have anything that are causing all the trouble and we are not like that.

Upon completion of the course, the new employees are transferred to the states upon request of state health departments and in accordance with the relative public health needs of the defense areas.

FRILLS WILL BE OMITTED TO SUPPLY SURGICAL SUPPLIES FOR DEFENSE
As a contribution to the national defense program, the National Bureau of Standards, department of commerce, has announced a further revision of the existing simplified practice recommendation limiting the width and length of surgical gauze and related articles.

As originally drafted by a general conference of the industry and promulgated in 1928, the simplified practice recommendation listed thirty-two cloth varieties and eliminated about thirty-two items for which there was little demand. In 1937 it was revised to eliminate nine additional items no longer in active demand.

The current revision accomplished a further reduction of three items—the 36-inch surgical gauze, 22 warp and 18 filling yards per inch; the 38 1/2-inch crinoline, 44 warp and 40 filling yards per inch; and the 6-yard, 1 1/2-inch bandage. Minor changes were made to clarify the recommendation and to provide packaging methods for surgical gauze bandages.

Cottonseed cake or meal is a standard protein supplement for sheep.
